Report #1: What Does It Take to Succeed in Real Estate

The following report was compiled in late 2012 by the Texas Association of REALTORS® based upon surveys of 284 broker/managers as well as over 500 new real estate agents. The more traits you have in the first column, the more likely you are to succeed.

Profile of a Successful REALTOR®*

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>High Probability Success Profile</th>
<th>Low Probability Success Profile</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1 Always tells the truth and tries to do the right thing</td>
<td>Unethical, lies, withholds information, cuts corners</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 Understands that real estate is a sales position that requires marketing, prospecting by asking for business, and strong negotiation skills</td>
<td>Expects leads to be given to them by the broker and/or is reluctant to ask for business from their sphere of influence</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3 Adequate financial reserves</td>
<td>Lacks sufficient funds to stay in business long enough to succeed (6-9 months)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4 Continuous learning mindset</td>
<td>Short cuts training, does minimum amount to get by rather than constantly learning</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5 Engages in dollar productive activities 40 hours per week</td>
<td>Works part time or hangs out at the office doing busy work</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6 Has mastered how to fill out and explain all buyer and seller contracts</td>
<td>Relies on technology to “autofill” contracts and/or lacks ability to explain contracts and ramifications to clients</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7 Has written goals and written business plan</td>
<td>Has no written goals and/or business plan</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8 Effective Face-to-Face Communication Skills</td>
<td>Poor face-to-face and telephone communication skills</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9 Customer service focused</td>
<td>Commission focused</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10 Business owner mindset</td>
<td>Job mindset</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11 Emotionally resilient, optimistic, handles conflict well</td>
<td>Easily discouraged, cynical, handles conflicts poorly</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12 Uses technology to enhance and create face-to-face interactions with leads and clients</td>
<td>Uses technology as a substitute for face-to-face interactions.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>13 Stays up to date on technology and regularly uses social media tools</td>
<td>Lags behind on technology, lacks a social media presence</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>14 Applies consistent clear cut systems</td>
<td>Lacks consistent systems and processes</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Copyright 1986-2017 RealEstateCoach.com, a subsidiary of Teleclass4U.com, LLC. All rights reserved in all media.
and processes and the interest/ability to create them.

| 15 Good contacts, community oriented | Poor contacts, lack of community involvement |

Survey results compiled from 284 Texas Owner Brokers/Managers

Some thoughts from broker owners about what it takes for new agents to succeed:

Unfortunately, new agents don’t realize how long it takes for most of them to get up and running so that they can make a living. Unless they learn the mechanics of the business, how to convert leads, and how to generate their own stream of business, it is unlikely that they will be successful.
Rick Brown, Owner, Realty Executives, San Antonio

The number one question that new agents ask is, “What does it takes to succeed in real estate?” The answer is that you have to show up, but the problem is that you think you don’t have to show up in real estate. Many agents get into real estate wanting flextime. In other words, no one is going to call you and tell you to come into work. Rather than putting in 40-50 hours of actual work like they may have on another job, they come in at 10:00, go to lunch at 12:00, pick up their kids at 3:00, and do an open house on Saturday for two hours and say they worked six days. Most new agents don’t get this and even if they do, they’re not willing to put in the hours it that takes to succeed. The second secret to success it you have to WORK when you show up! In other words, you have to do the activities that breed the results.
Jim Fite, President, CEO, Century 21 Judge Fite Company